PEACE.

Now, let's line in and all forget the quarrels that have made us fret. The slight misunderstandings which have worked us up to fighting pitch. Let's straighten out then, be gay. Like Russia an' Japan today. It's allus easy to agree. If them folks kin, why, so kin we.

It's queer what bitterness intense kin start up from an old rail fence, Or from a wanderin' scratchin' fowl. Or from a dog that loves to growl. But what had stood between these chaps Was big enough to change the maps. Of half the world; so don't you see, If them folks kin, why, so kin we.

A Soft Answer.

Here is a story about Sir Patrick Talbot, sergeant-at-arms in the House of Lords. He had been private secretary to the great Lord Derby, when Prime Minister, and afterward married one of his daughters. One day, when a large party was present at Knowsley, Lord Derby burst out at table with the remark: "It's a curious thing one never knows what a lot of fools there are in England until one becomes Prime Minister." Thereupon Talbot, at the other end of the table, said: "Yes, and one never knows what a fool a Prime Minister may be until one becomes his private secretary." Lord Derby's reply was: "Thank you, Pat." Dundee Advertiser.

TAKES TESTIMONY IN SUIT OF MRS. DALY

Widow of Late Millionaire Would Recover Inheritance Tax Paid Government.

HELENA, Mont., Sept. 16.—James A. Tanner of Washington, D. C., assistant United States Attorney-General, today took the testimony here of G. D. French, deputy State Auditor, and formerly deputy Collector of Internal Revenue for Montana, in a proceeding brought by Mrs. Marcus Daly, administratrix of the estate of the late Marcus Daly, against the United States to recover $16,000 paid by the dead copper millionaire's estate under the provisions of the inheritance tax law of 1895, the war revenue act.

Look Callister's Testimony.

Mrs. Tanner arrived last night from Salt Lake City, where he took the testimony of United States Collector M. H. Callister of this district. The case is parallel to the Vanderbilt case, in which the Supreme court of the United States declared the law unconstitutional, and it was subsequently repealed.

Alleges Over-Payment.

Mrs. Daly then brought suit against the United States to recover the amount paid to Deputy Collector French, alleging in addition to the facts set up in the Vanderbilt case, that French had received more than was legally due at the time, some of the heirs not then being 30 years of age. In order to meet the issues of this suit the Government is taking the testimony of all concerned.

Safe and $25,000 Gems Found.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Mrs. Paul Bonner of Nirvana, near Stanford, Conn., today received assurance from detectives employed on the case that the safe containing $25,000 worth of her jewels, besides valuable papers which mysteriously disappeared on August 29, had been located, that it had not been blown open and that it would be in her possession in the next forty-eight hours.

Both the Pinkertons and the central office now believe that a social highwayman may have offered information to the three cracksmen, and the lady's maid who was formerly in Mrs. Bonner's employment, but the identity of the social flycatcher still remains a perplexing mystery.

SILVER TO COPPER MINES.

Interesting Transition at Some of Notable Producers.

With which to exemplify a story upon the copper mines that began their career as producers of silver and lead with gold and zinc, the Mining and Scientific Press of San Francisco draws upon not a few properties with which Tribune readers are familiar. Of the transition at Butte there are several examples, while it is now believed that similar changes are to occur in the Rainbow lode, upon which is located the properties of the Alice Mining company, long controlled in this city. The lode consists of a vein system in which the vein upon which the Alice mine is located is the most prominent, says the Press. "Many millions of dollars in gold and silver have been taken from the lode and rich placers were found in the gulches below the outcrop. As depth was attained, the oxidized ore gave place to the sulphides of iron, lead and zinc; but little is said in early reports on the district about the occurrence of copper in these ores. An analysis made of ore taken from the lode in 1878 indicated the presence of gold, silver, lead, zinc, iron and sulphur, but copper is not mentioned. It is the more interesting, therefore, to note that the Lexington mine, which has recently come into the possession of F. A. Heinze, is now being worked for copper, and is said to be producing at present fifty tons of copper ore daily. If the Lexington becomes a copper producer there is a reasonable probability that the numerous other mines in this same system of fissures may also become copper mines; also, probably, heretofore no one has ever thought of them as such. There are numerous instances of mines recognized as producers of gold, silver, lead and zinc ore, but which were not considered as having a possible value for copper, that with depth have become valuable for their output of copper ore. Notable instances are the silver mines of Cerro de Pasco, Peru; Horn Silver mine at Frisco, Utah, noted as a lead-silver mine, and some of the mines of the Butte district of Montana. It is on this conviction that the Alice have been working the lode, and it was with this in mind that they were so anxious to have the lode declared a copper mine, but this is denied by the Alice company.

It is said that last year 7000 visitors were received at Abbotsford, B.C., estate, though people of their time had little else to do. Dr. John H. "ugly" Abbotsford, B.C., as "the most incongruous manly modernism ever." Stanley said it was "once, but never again."
